

Barbara Berryhill passed away on January 29th, 2017. She was 83 years old and in good spirits to the end.

Barbara grew up in Rhinelander, Wisconsin, where her father, Ray Iverson, worked for the National Forest Service. Ray and Barbara's mother, Helen Kapple Iverson, built a red pine plantation on 60 acres outside of Rhinelander. The tree farm continues to thrive, and some stands are now more than 70 years old. Barbara lived most of her adult life in Minnesota, but loved returning to visit and work on the tree farm. She had many eclectic interests, including forestry, architecture, and sociology.

Barbara is survived by three children, Bruce, Janet, and Ross and their families. She also is survived by her sister, Judy Langhorst, and her family. Barbara was preceded in death by her husband, John Berryhill, and her parents.
